BOXWOOD & ROSEMARY

Container Care

A simple guide for every season

Thank you for trusting Boxwood & Rosemary with your seasonal containers. Use these practical tips alongside any instructions provided for your specific planting.

01	Everyday watering	Feel the soil about an inch below the surface. When it feels dry, water the soil, not the plants, slowly and thoroughly until water drains from the holes underneath. Empty standing water from saucers.
02	During very hot weather	Check the soil each morning and again later during a heat wave or windy spell. Containers may need water more than once a day. Offer sensitive pots afternoon shade when practical. A wilted plant can have damp soil, so always check before watering.
03	Before freezing weather	Move tender pots into a sheltered, bright place when possible. If heavy containers must stay outside, group them in a protected area and insulate the pots. Cover tender foliage as needed, then remove covers when temperatures rise. Check moisture, but do not leave soil soggy.

A note from Lisa

Every planting is different. If you are unsure how your container handles heat or cold, send a photo and ask before making a big change.
